

Pißwasser is a German export lager frequently advertised on radio and TV. 'Wasser' is German for 'water', implying the beverage's literal name is 'piss water', a slang term for cheap, watered-down beer. According to the in-game website www.piswasser.com, the ingredients include "the fresh urine of Bavarian virgins" (however, the site goes on to say "or so we claim", implying that it might not be as fresh as one would hope). Billboards seen in-game expand the urine references, even going so far as to suggest the bottles contain nothing but urine (perhaps in reference to the urine in Corona beer rumor). The beer's slogan and tagline is: "You're In For A Good Time" ("You're In" being a pun on "Urine"). The quality of the beer is reflected by its second slogan: "Cheap German Lager For Export Only". The Pißwasser badge on bar pumps is labelled "Ü-Rhine" (and the six-crate of Pißwasser that Rockstar sent to UK website CVG Online as a present was labelled in the same way), which is probably a reference to the Rhine river in Germany, as well as another pun on "urine". Pißwasser sponsored the Republican Space Rangers show in 2008.

Radio and television advertisements for the beer feature variations of a song sung by a stereotypical redneck man with lyrics that portray comically exaggerated effects of alcoholism, including "[giving] a dude head" and "[driving] drunk off a pier". The Pißwasser song largely spoofs Budweiser's anthem, "This is Budweiser, This is Beer", particularly towards the end of the jingle.

Ammu-Nation is a major chain of gun shops. The chain primarily specializes in offering the player an assortment of firearms from pistols to a Minigun, as well as Body Armor, in exchange for money. Ammu-Nation also sells various other types of weapons, such as machetes and RPGs.

Ammu-Nation stores tend to have only weak weapons in stock upon being unlocked; more powerful weapons are unlocked as the player progresses through the storyline of each game it appears in.

The name Ammu-Nation is a portmanteau of ammunition and nation, which implies that the store is patriotic. In many Ammu-Nation stores, battle flags of the Confederate States of America can be seen on the walls. Ammu-Nation was founded at some point in the late 1950s or early 1960s, according to its description on BAWSAQ. Ammu-Nation outlets are common in Southern San Andreas, featured in both Grand Theft Auto V and Grand Theft Auto Online. As of 2013, Ammu-Nation is selling many illegal military-grade weapons to the general public. The player can also purchase stocks from them on the Bawsaq.com website in GTA V.

LifeInvader is an online social networking service and company in Grand Theft Auto V and Grand Theft Auto Online. It was founded by CEO Jay Norris in his parents' house. According to him, the average LifeInvader worker's age is 14.4 years. Also, Lester Crest claims on his LifeInvader

Lifeinvader is a largely popular social networking site that was either created, or spiked in popularity, between 2010 and 2013, as there is no evidence of its existence in Grand Theft Auto IV and its episodes, nor in Grand Theft Auto: Chinatown Wars, which are set in 2008 and 2009, respectively. It allows its users to post blogs and "stalk" (a take on

Each of the three GTA V protagonists have their own viewable Lifeinvader profile. Throughout the story, characters will post on their timelines regarding events that took place during missions. As an Easter egg, Niko Bellic has a profile, however it is only viewable on Jimmy's laptop screen and cannot be accessed on the in-game internet. Several other GTA IV characters also have profiles.

Their headquarters, known as the Lifeinvader Office, are located in Rockford Hills, Los Santos, and are made accessible in the mission Friend Request. It is based on the Sonya Dakar Building in Beverly Hills, California. Suspiciously, there is some whiteboard writing in the offices that reads "IAA backdoor."

Fleeca is a banking and credit card company in the HD Universe of the Grand Theft Auto series. Fleeca was first introduced in Grand Theft Auto IV as a credit card and loan company. The company would receive an expanded presence in Grand Theft Auto V and Grand Theft Auto Online as a prominent chain of banks. The company was founded either in 1899 as indicated by a plaque found in Grand Theft Auto V, or 1913 as implied by advertisements in Grand Theft Auto IV mentioning that 2013 is the 100th anniversary of the company. In Grand Theft Auto V, along with offering credit cards, Fleeca now operates a series of physical banks named Fleeca Bank around San Andreas. These banks are accessible, but no cashiers or employees appear inside. The banks are not featured in any missions and the vaults cannot be opened. Its in-game website is www.fleeca.com. The player can also buy stocks from them on the Lcn-exchange.com website. Any money the player picks up takes the form of a stack of $100 bills wrapped in a Fleeca bank strap. In Grand Theft Auto Online, the Fleeca Bank branch on the Great Ocean Highway is the main target during the Fleeca Job heist. Lester says that this branch is a good target because it has got some bonds guarded in deposit boxes that are being hidden from the taxman, which no one will report missing. Moreover, there is light security at this branch. The crew first scope the bank to take as much information as they can, steal an Armored Kuruma to assist in the getaway, and then the crew steals the deposit box 167 in the finale.

Fleeca Banks around the map can be randomly selected as locations that The Professionals can rob during Robbery in Progress. During these missions, Professionals can be seen on the security cameras holding up the bank, with some members providing crowd control in the lobby and another shooting a security guard in the vault.

Fleeca once more becomes the subject of multiple robberies. An Armenian client puts out a contract through KDJ to commit rob all six accessible franchises located throughout Los Santos and Blaine County during The Bank Contract as a result of being wrongfully dismissed from Fleeca. Using stolen thermal charges and signal jammers provided by the client, the GTA Online Protagonist robs all six franchises, stealing marked bills from the vault, before evading the police and delivering them to the client.

It is possible to glitch into the Fleeca banks using the phone glitch and standing in a certain place. There is a safe, although the player cannot open it with explosives, melee weapons or bullets, and the door behind the counter is locked so it's not possible to get into that area.

Maze Bank is a chain of banks in the HD Universe located in Los Santos. In Grand Theft Auto V. Its presence is predominant in Southern San Andreas with branches throughout the Los Santos Metropolitan Area. One of The Three Bankers works for the bank.

The headquarters of the company, the Maze Bank Tower, is located in Pillbox Hill, Downtown Los Santos. This skyscraper is the tallest building in San Andreas and the West Coast of the United States of America. The company also sponsors the Maze Bank Arena in La Puerta, the city's main stadium, and sponsors the Richards Majestic Productions film Meltdown.

The company Minotaur Finance is owned by Maze Bank according to the Avarice magazine.

GoPostal is the official postal courier delivery service in Grand Theft Auto V. It is one of the two main delivery companies in the game, the other being Post OP. The owner of the company and when it was founded is unknown.

The company uses distinctly liveried Boxville and Pony vans for deliveries and has three processing buildings in Los Santos. They are located in Downtown Vinewood, Pillbox Hill and Los Santos International Airport.

Vangelico is a jewelry retailer appearing in Grand Theft Auto V. According to the multiple posters on the wall of the store in Rockford Hills, Vangelico was founded in 1852. The interior contains several displays with jewelry, watches and luxury accessories, a cashier and an office. Unlike all the other stores on the east side of Little Portola, Vangelico does not have another doorway on Rockford Drive, although it does still have display windows. It is robbed by Michael De Santa and Franklin Clinton during The Jewel Store Job in 2013. Michael first poses as a customer with glasses provided by Lester Crest to case the store. He deals with an unnamed Jewelry Store Clerk. After the robbery, the store is closed down for the rest of the game and panels will now cover the windows and doors, stating that the store is "Undergoing renovations" and that's why it's "closed for refurbishment".

Vangelico stock will plummet after The Jewel Store Job, but will partially rebound after completion of Minor Turbulence, yielding an approximate 42.57% return on investment if purchased beforehand. After the After Hours update, the store becomes accessible during a Client Job. In 2018, Paige Harris enlists the GTA Online Protagonist to rob the store of a shipment of diamonds using the Terrorbyte's drone. The front office is accessible on this occasion.

August Insurance is an insurance company Augury Insurance has its own office in Los Santos, located on Dorset Drive, Rockford Hills. Players can buy the company's stock on the website Lcn-exchange.com. Strangely, the GTA Online Protagonist uses Mors Mutual Insurance even though Augury covers automobile insurance.

eCola is a brand of soft drinks owned by The Sprunk Company. According to the Proposition 208 website in 2013, eCola was launched in 1886, with cocaine being its lead ingredient. However, in 1903, the soft drink replaced cocaine with a considerable amount of corn sugar and caffeine. Upon the introduction of these new ingredients, eCola consumers' health "deteriorates further." The brand name is a play on both the E. coli bacteria and the Ebola virus. The company's slogan states that the drink is "Deliciously infectious!" which could suggest that the soft drink is contaminated, or more likely, that it is highly addictive, a reference to Coca-Cola once containing cocaine. In addition, eCola's 1886 launch mirrors the real life introduction of Coca-Cola during the same year.

Mors Mutual Insurance is an health and automotive insurance company that appears in Grand Theft Auto V. Mors Mutual's headquarters are located on the corner of Dorset Drive and Mad Wayne Thunder Drive in Rockford Hills, Los Santos. The player can invest in stocks of the company by accessing the Lcn-exchange.com website in Grand Theft Auto V.

In Grand Theft Auto Online, the company serves a much greater role, offering automotive insurance services to the GTA Online Protagonist, in the form of full replacement of damaged or destroyed vehicles as long as they have paid for the insurance. Mors Mutual also serves as a minor sponsor on some vehicle liveries, such as the 190z.

In 2021, with The Contract update for GTA Online, recording studio Record A Studios began occupying the north side of Mors Mutual's headquarters in Rockford Hills, adding a rooftop bar and pool to the northern wing's roof.